

I strongly encourage the FCC to leave Indiana law alone and not try to pass pre-emptive legislation regarding Indiana's telephone privacy law.

The Indiana Attorney General has championed the law that does the following to name a few from the top of my head.

Reduced or eliminated the occurrences of unsolicited phone calls.

I used to get 8-12 calls per week on average.

Reduced the interruptions in my home from same.

Reduced the amount of stress in my home.

Made my friends and family happy because I don't answer the phone like I am mad.

Leave us alone.
